$5000 PRIZE
OFFERED BEST
SEMI-PRO NINE

WICHITA, Kan., March 3.—UP—The semi-pro baseball championship of the United States will be decided in a tournament for state champions here August 14 to 26.

Playoff here will follow tournaments in 32 states. Only winners of state tournaments will compete in the nationwide meet.

More than 3,000 teams will compete in the 32 state tournaments for which negotiations already have been launched.

A minimum purse of $5,000 will reward the winner of the national tournament here, and prizes will be shared by all teams that reach the national event through bonus for each game won.

The first tournament was held here last summer and attracted a wide group of entries from many states. The tournament retained too much Midwest flavor to be widely accepted as a national event, however.

OLD STARS TO PLAY
As an incentive to livelier activity around the tournament turnstiles, an exhibition game with 18 former stars of the major leagues who now are past 50 forming the teams, is being arranged.

Topping the tentative list is Cy Young, formerly of the Boston Red Sox, who holds the major league record for the greatest number of pitching victories—512.

He Paid Police
Protection Cash

SAN RAFAEL, March 3.—UP—Sam Lee, Chinese gambler now on trial for attempted bribery, paid police protection for gambling houses in San Francisco District Attorney Albert E. Bugshaw of Marin county today testified the Chinese once told him.

Bugshaw testified that when Lee came to him seeking protection for Marin county gambling, he asked the Chinese if he had been able to "fix" San Francisco police. "Yes," Lee told me, Bugshaw said, "that he had some small gambling places in San Francisco and in reply to my question if he were paying protection money, he replied, 'I pay a little'."

Bugshaw testified the current proceedings against Lee, also known as Low Ying.

After that, said Sullivan, tests on cattle will be carried on under protection of county peace officers despite threats of violence against state veterinarians.

TWO RICHMOND
TEAMS BEATEN
IN LOOP PLAY

Two more Richmond basketball teams were eliminated from play in the county basketball tournament at Martinez last night while a third local club won an upset victory to remain in the tournament.

The McRacken Clothiers, heavily favored to win, lost a 39 to 37 decision to the Pittsburg Foresters while the CCC Camp boys were defeated 37 to 24 by the Walnut Creek Browns.

The Richmond Producers upset the dope by nosing out the LaSalle club, scheduled by all pre-season dope to win the tourney by the score of 34 to 32.

In this game the local team led by a score of 29 to 8 at half time. In the second half the LaSalle turned on the heat but the local team maintained its lead. Near the close of the game the score was tied but Kistlingbury—who was high man for the local team with 15 points—sank a bucket to win. Baldwin was second high man with 10 points.

The McRacken Club trailed the Foresters 19 to 17 at half time. Near the end of the game the score was tied 37-37. Then P. Davi sank the winning bucket.

Bowles was high man for the locals with nine points.

The Walnut Creek team took an early lead and held it throughout to defeat the CCC boys. Jackson was high man for the locals with seven points.

ROOSEVELT TAX DEMANDS HIT BY CRITICS

WASHINGTON, March 3.—UP—President Roosevelt called on Congress for $1,337,000,000 in additional revenues today in a sharply worded message proposing a graduated levy on undivided corporate surplus, temporary excises on farm products and repeal of four taxes affecting business and dividends.

The long-awaited message said the money was needed to balance the 1936-37 ordinary Federal budget, distorted by the Supreme court's invalidation of AAA and congressional enactment of the soldier bonus bill.

General revision of present income tax schedules was not proposed.

Later, as a storm of criticism of the proposed corporate surplus tax broke on Capitol Hill, Mr. Roosevelt defended it by saying it would aid in expansion of business and increase the velocity of money.

He spent nearly half an hour explaining to newspapermen how the tax would work and cautioning them to differentiate between corporate reserves and corporate surpluses.

The President's recommendations brought instant action. Chairman Robert Loughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the House ways and means committee which must draft the new tax measure, called the group into executive session immediately. A sub-committee headed by Representative Samuel B. Hill, Democrat, Washington, tomorrow will begin preparing a report on the White House proposals which will serve as the basis for public hearings later.

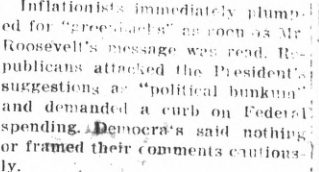

TWO WEEKS TASK

Hill estimated it would require his committee two weeks to complete its task. This indicated that it would be a month or six weeks before a completed bill is disposed of by the House.

Inflationists immediately plumed for "corrective" action as Mr. Roosevelt's message was read. Republicans attacked the President, suggesting a "political bonanza" and demanded a curb on Federal spending. Democrats said nothing or framed their comments cautiously.

Today's Safe Driving Hint

By The National Safety Council

What's your hurry?

Honestly, now, what's your hurry?

Is it a desire to show off? Then you should be in the circus.

Is it a desire to save a few minutes? If so, you are a poor gambler, for your risk a life against the saving of those few minutes.

Excessive speed isn't fair. It isn't fair to yourself or your family. It isn't fair to other drivers who have as much right on the highway as you have. It isn't fair to pedestrians who depend upon you to use good judgment.

Think of these things when you feel that desire to step on the gas cropping up. There is little to be gained by speeding, and much to lose.

Mooney Defense Scores Again At Hearing In S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—UP—Lester Hand, former San Francisco bomb squad policeman, testified today that two women who claimed they were near the scene of the Preparedness Day bombing had not been able to recognize Thomas J. Mooney and Warren R. Billings as "two men they saw carrying a suitcase."

Hand occupied the witness stand throughout proceedings today in Mooney's hearing to obtain a writ of habeas corpus. The women, he said, were Mrs. Malley Edeau and Miss Sadie Edeau, who witnessed the Preparedness Day parade from 721 Market street, near Stuart street, the scene of the explosion which killed ten persons and wounded 40.

The Edeau sisters had told him they had seen two men "carrying a suitcase from Market to Stuart" and said they could identify them if they saw them later. However, Hand said, they recognized none of the suspects, which included Mooney and Billings, when they viewed them at police headquarters.

"Boon" is the way the scout usually spelled his name. J. A. L. H. Boone is shown in his Elks uniform cap and coat he has worn to Elks conventions since 1907. The date of 1775 appearing on the stone was the year in which Boone led an armed band of men to a fort on the Kentucky River on the site of Boonesboro.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Probably the greatest discovery in the history of the White House was his sense of humor. It had none.

Now, however, the ex-President has blossomed forth. Not only does he smile, but he tells an occasional good story.

Here is one told to friends before an open fire one evening. We do not vouch for the accuracy of the story. But we do vouch for the fact that Herbert Hoover told it.

When Albert, late King of the Belgians, paid a visit to this country shortly after the War, he found that the metropolitan protocol of the State Department required that he pay his respects at the White House before he did anything else of an official nature. But President Wilson was absent and would not return for nearly two weeks.

So, rather than mark time in Washington, King Albert telegraphed to Hoover, whom he had known during food-poor days in Belgium, asking if he could visit him in California.

Mr. Hoover wired back: "How many in your party?"

And King Albert's secretary, with out consulting His Majesty, wired back: "Sixty-one."

Mr. Hoover says that he was a little dismayed at this, but finally decided that several millionaires living in the California foothills had lost no money by the war, and might well entertain different parts of the King's party. Hoover suggested, incidentally, that the King doubtless would want to bestow important decorations on them.

So King Albert and his retinue arrived.

And as he went out on the first day for a ride through the California hills, he found waiting for him at the gate a picturesque figure on horseback. The visitor greeted him with "O, King!" and announced that he was the local sheriff.

King Albert seemed much taken with the sheriff and spent much of that day riding with him, much to the disgust of his host. Next day the sheriff again waited on the King and again rode with him.

Following this, the host called in the sheriff, informed him that he made a great mistake in addressing Albert as "O, King!" that the monarch should be addressed only as "Your Majesty." Furthermore, the host hired a couple of detectives to guard the King and keep the sheriff at a safe distance.

Next morning the King went riding again. The sheriff was not at the gate. But later Albert saw him riding alone on the top of a ridge. Whereupon the King of the Belgians left his host the detectives, at all, and spurred his horse on to join his old enemy.

"Good morning, Your Majesty," greeted the sheriff, standing over the pronouncement.

"Why don't you call me 'O, King!'" replied Albert. "I like it much better."

As His Majesty departed for Washington he bestowed on his hosts the promised decorations. They hung from small pieces of ribbon to be pinned on the chest.

But a few days later, the millionaire hosts, riding through the neighboring town, were greeted by a sheriff who vied around his waist the broad, majestic sash of the Or-

HOLLYWOOD, March 3.—UP—Harold Lloyd is one of the few motion picture actors whose efforts have retained public approval over a period of years—and he is wondering how he survived.

When he started, with his horn-rimmed glasses as a trade mark, he was classed as a comedian. He is still in that group, but is wondering seriously whether he should be billed as a stunt man.

"When I was younger," he confides, "I didn't mind it so much. It was fun doing the stunts in the old one-reelers that Hal Roach made. But now I'm getting older and there is the question of whether I can still take it."

Lloyd's musings were inspired by a recollection of what he had to do in his latest picture, "The Milky Way."

"The studio wanted me to box with a kangaroo," he explained, "but the idea was cancelled. A scene with me putting my head in a lion's mouth was substituted."

After considerable argument, the scene was modified, a bit, Lloyd merely had to lead the lion around the set.

"Another one in 'The Milky Way' wasn't so easy," he continued. "I had to come off a building with a parachute and get tangled up in a tree. I did that all right and not only got tangled up with the tree but with the parachute, thereby losing much skin. Then the scene was cut out of the picture."

Despite his fears, Lloyd rather likes his thrills after they are over. His biggest thrill came in "Safety Last."

"We took many of the scenes on the face of a New York skyscraper," he recalls. "I kicked when they wanted me to hang by the minute hand of a clock on the building, then fall and be stopped by a rope which was to become tangled with my right foot."

"Roach finally agreed that we could do that one in the studio, using trick photography. When I arrived on the set, I found they had rigged the thing way up by the roof, so that if I fell I'd be killed as surely as though I'd fallen from the Woolworth building."

WRONG NUMBER

After King Albert returned East it was arranged that he should bestow the Order of Leopold on the late Charles A. Sabin, head of the Guaranty Trust Company.

This order, it was specified, could only be bestowed properly when the King touched the recipient on the head with his sword.

So it was arranged that, at a reception to the King, Mr. Sabin, whom the King had never met, was to step out of line, wait at one side while an aide put the decoration over his head and the King touched him with his sword.

All went as scheduled. A man stepped out of line and stood before the King. He was very bald, wore a black skull cap. The aide promptly put the decoration over his head and the King touched him with his sword. The recipient looked slightly dazed but went on.

MR. SABIN

A few minutes later, another guest stepped out of line. The King kept on receiving, paid no attention to him. The man coughed, looked slightly nervous, jacked back and forth.

Finally, an aide said: "Your Majesty, there's another man waiting here. I think he's the one to be decorated."

"But we have no more decorations," replied King Albert.

It turned out that the second guest was Charles Sabin. The first was the late Judge Albert Gary, head of the United States Steel Corporation.

He had been pushed out of line. And that is Herbert Hoover's story.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Al Smith's name is now being boomed on the sidewalks from which he rose to fame. Democrats in a local district gave Al the raspberry the other night, even though they voted for him as a delegate to the big convention. Jack Dempsey has just celebrated the first anniversary of his steak and chop house opposite Madison Square Garden. It has been a hugely successful spot, and passersby still step on the sidewalk to catch a glimpse of the Mania-a-Mauler through the windows.

Hollywood headlines in town at the moment: Irene Purcell, Max Reinhardt, O. Skinner, G. Raymond Louis Lons, Winfield Sheehan, Carmel Myers, Freddy Bartholomew and Kitty Carlisle. The big show last Sunday afternoon was at the Central Park Zoo, where two sub-bears in the case in the center of the plaza put on a rough-and-tumble wrestling match for the crowds. There was a roar of delight when the brown baby pinned the black boy's shoulders to the mat. Al-fred Lunt is going to do some tap dancing in the new Robert Sherwood play, "Idiot's Delight," when the Theater Guild will bring on soon. He's taking special lessons from an expert hoofer, in preparation. With the cold snap broken, Broadway's strolling actors are back in harness. Pauline Lord, Jimmy Durante, Philip Morival and Laura Hope Crews are again visible when you pay your money to see them.

INTIMATES: A wandering musician trying to get into a sold-out Toscanini concert, last week, found a matronly lady in the lobby of Carnegie hall with an extra ticket to sell. Seated next to her up in the Dress Circle, he entered into genial conversation between numbers, and discovered that she was a regular concertgoer, occupying the same seats for almost twenty years.

The newswoman was rather surprised at this information, and asked if there were many old subscribers like herself in the audience.

"Oh, yes," answered the woman. "Why that men just on your right—has been sitting in that same seat for fifteen years."

"Is that so?" exclaimed her astonished companion. "Who is he?"

The lady turned with a puzzled frown.

"Why I really don't know!"

TRYST: Lover's lanes flourish in Manhattan, too. For sailors, it's the Times Square subway station. For students: the 42nd Street Public Library. For radicals: Irving Place and 14th Street. And Central Park, of course, for everybody else.

press freedom discussed by famed editor

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—UP—If there is any danger to the freedom of the American press, that danger is internal. Chester H. Rowell, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, declared tonight in an address on "Freedom of the Press" at the Committee on Civic Education by Radio, said the fundamental problem facing the press of the United States is that giving "more vitality to what tends too often to become a dead machine."

"If the press does not fill its full place in American life it is not because it is prevented from doing so," he commented. "It is because, being negatively free, it lacks the positive qualities to realize that freedom."

"As against external aggression even the weakest of our press will defend itself. But this is not the battle we shall have to fight. It will be, rather, to give more vitality to what tends too often to become a dead machine. It will be to add to the business standard of making and selling goods at a profit also the professional standard of living up to a mark and rendering a service."

"It will be to make of the newspaper a personality, playing its part in life, and to recognize it is the vital organ of democracy, as well as the purveyor of news, advertising and entertainment. Men and institutions are not liberated merely by removing their shackles, and freedom can be neither conferred nor imposed; it must be achieved. It is a life, not merely a permission."

CHAPTER XXXIV

VINCENT took Nightingale's hand in his, spoke comfortingly into her ear.

"We'll come through all right."

For answer Nightingale drew aim to the rail, pointed silently toward the bridge piers, looming closer and closer. In the end, there would be only one thing to do—lunge into the icy swirling water together in one swift shuddering dive before the crash. She looked down at the heaving river and trembled.

Vincent spoke again. "You go to one end and I'll go to the other," he said. "Call for help."

Nightingale stumbled aft. She lifted her voice. "Help! Help! Again and again she called.

THEN, suddenly, she heard something coming against the side of the houseboat. Leaning over the rail she saw a skiff with a man in it. Suddenly thanksgiving swept her. But a gust of wind and the swirl of waters swept the skiff away. The man pulled dazedly on his oars. By inches he brought the skiff close a second time.

Straining her eyes, Nightingale recognized something familiar in the massive hulking figure, but in the darkness she couldn't see who it was.

He stood up and flung a rope to her. "Fasten this, and then I'll help you down!" he shouted.

Nightingale grabbed for the rope, but her hands were numb with cold and through their numbness she felt the rope slipping—slipping. Before she could clutch it again it slipped from her fingers as the buffeted skiff was once more swept away.

Suddenly she realized that the man in the skiff was Big Adam and a flash of intuition came to her. The Merry Gentlemen had not drifted away from its oosts alone—the cables had not thinned and snapped—Big Adam had deliberately sent it to its doom!

She saw the skiff turn topple. An oar went overboard. Big Adam tumbled desperately to retrieve it and failed. Now he had but one oar to aid him in his battle to reach The Merry Gentlemen. Vincent was beside Nightingale now and together they watched the skiff veer slowly closer but its single oar was futile in the combat. And then, unexpectedly, the river missionary stood up in the skiff and, with his head thrown back, lifted his voice to the heavens.

"He's praying," Nightingale whispered.

THE MERRY GENTLEMEN, caught in an eddy of the current, suddenly swerved, turning half round, so that it now was at a right angle to the shore. Simultaneously, there was a lull in the wind.

Nightingale opened her mouth and shouted, and this time her cry of "Help!" brought a response.

Houseboat Row opened its doors—sent people crowding onto the river bank. Their stunned amazement at the first sight of the drifting houseboat changed to fast, concerted action.

Big Adam roared a command at them across the water.

"Quick!—the rope on the Mission! Throw it out to me and make your end fast!"

There was a rush toward the floating chapel. A window was broken as men fought to gain entrance. Then lights were turned on and figures spilling over each other were silhouetted inside.

Quickly a great coil of rope was unwound and flung across the water toward Big Adam. As it struck the water near him he swooped a loop up with his oar and relayed it to The Merry Gentlemen.

VINCENT with Nightingale aiding knotted it to the deck rails. Then the men on the Mission boat, pulling together on their end of the rope, began slowly to draw the drifting houseboat shoreward. Their aim was to pull it to a berth beside the chapel. But as they hauled on the rope, they suddenly felt it go slack in their hands. Looking up they saw Luke Connors' river tavern pitching headlong toward them.

Swift suction of the water had the hands of a mad phantom plied. With terrific momentum, it seemingly delivered the craft into Vincent's arms and staggered toward the far end of the dock.

Vincent swung Nightingale into his arms and staggered toward the far end of the dock.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest.
It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only make-shifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazingly effective. Buy freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

to relieve unemployment—and they are nothing but expedients as has been conclusively demonstrated—have not gone to the root of the evil. The factors of unemployment still remain and will rise up to menace us. Something must be done, but what is the remedy? That there is one, cannot be gainsaid, but where is the clear thinker who can lead us out of our economic morass? As yet I have not seen the shadow of such a man or men on the horizon. Have you?

Colds, When They Get Good Hold, Bring Serious Consequences

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

PEOPLE have suffered from the common cold ever since they began to congregate in groups, camps, and cities. Too often considered of very little consequence, the common cold and its results in sinus, ear, throat and lung infections and all other resulting afflictions is the most prolific cause known of disability and death.

It is often said we do not know the cause of a cold. It is true, we cannot state any specific bacteria cannot state any specific bacteria or virus causes a cold, but we do know certain germs are present in all colds and we have no proof that some combination of various bacteria is not the cause.

Dr. Webster and C. O. Webb report that "persons free from bacteria named in the nose, throat, and lungs, and S. Hemolyticus are free from coryza, sore throat, influenza and serious attacks." So we probably know the cause, but cannot prove it.

These germs surround us wherever people are congregated, and we all harbor them in the nose and throat. Most of the time our resistance to their growth prevents their development, but when our body resistance becomes low from overwork, loss of sleep, prolonged exposure to improper foods, these germs begin to multiply and some produce the symptoms of sore throat, burning nostrils, weeping eyes, sneezing and coughing.

May Become Serious

The simple cold only affects the membranes of the throat, nose, and upper part of the bronchial tubes. If this condition is neglected, and exhaustion and over-work or over-worry continues, this may spread into the smaller bronchial tubes, even into the air sacs, and result in the condition known as Broncho Pneumonia.

If many pneumococci germs are present they may attack the lung tissue itself, resulting in consolidation of one or more lobes of the lung, causing Lobar Pneumonia. If this becomes extensive not enough oxygen can enter the lung and the condition grows serious.

Lobar Pneumonia may appear suddenly with consolidation and filling of the air cells, but more frequently it develops slowly, following a common cold which is neglected. All these things lower the resistance to a much greater degree, and when recovery takes place, some of the tissue has been injured, thus permitting the development of the slower and more chronic troubles, such as tuberculosis, chronic bronchitis, pleurisy and asthma.

The great majority of cases of tuberculosis follow a common cold. It is easy to see a common cold far-reaching and serious consequences. The great topic is, how to prevent the common cold. Unfortunately we have no medicine that will always prevent it. So far as possible we should avoid crowds and close association with those suffering from a cold.

Keep Resistance Up

The greatest prevention is the use of the various methods of keeping the body resistance to a high level. Protect yourself from exposure and over-work. Then fresh air, good wholesome food, sunshine and exercise will do the rest.

To many city dwellers this is not as simple as it sounds. Time and opportunity are difficult to obtain. But those working indoors should form a rigid schedule, which will allow them to get as much exercise as possible outdoors morning and evening. Sunshine, whenever possible. Arrange for your vacations to be in the open. If opportunity to obtain exercise is limited, mild calisthenics and deep breathing for four or five minutes will be a help.

Washing out the nose and throat with warm soda water twice a day aids in removing bacteria, dirt and dust, and keeps the membranes in a more healthy condition. If you are subject to frequent colds we recommend a series of injections into the muscles of a vaccine compound of the various germs present in colds.

If these are taken in small doses, doses, so as not to cause undue reaction, using them every four or five days up to five doses, it frequently increases the resistance to these germs and will to a great extent lessen susceptibility.

Short Cuts

Make your own bread crumbs by drying bread in the oven. Then put it through a food chopper and store in a covered glass jar.

Beans, meats, green vegetables and shellfish are the only iron foods. In cooking vegetables use a small amount of water and cook quickly. Long cooking destroys minerals.

Cocoa prepared with milk combines an abundance of precious food elements—proteins, carbohydrates, calcium, phosphorus, Vitamin A and Vitamin B. Serve it to the children from time to time as a change from plain milk.

Guide to Charm

Round-Faced Girls Pass By The Curl Idea

By JACQUELINE HUNT

GIRLS with round, full-moon faces and those with long noses are apt to dread shopping for new hats, still once you learn the tricky things you can wear becomingly, you can get as much fun out of shopping tours as anyone.

Strange as it seems, while these two types are extreme opposites, both must avoid the same lines, and both find much the same things becoming. Both should avoid petty-pretty things and strive for smartness.

If you are the dimply, round-faced type and you want to appear more sophisticated you can do it with hat and hair. First, arrange your hair in one of the new and striking styles. You should not be contented with soft, simple curls around your face and neckline.

Have your hair cut fairly short and swirled in smooth waves and swirled in smooth waves and swirled in smooth waves.

The New Hats From Paris Depend Upon the Coiffure

By IRENE VAIL

New York—It is obvious that the new hats, frolicsome, many of them, must be helped out by the coiffure. Generally speaking, the hair line is rising, and it is not unusual to see evening coiffures revealing the back of the neck.

I have already told you a revival of the pompadour is not at all unlikely, and if your type looks well in fuzzy bangs and tight temples, now is your time to try it out on your friends.

Black derbies are sponsored by Schiaparelli and these are lower than derbies, and appear both in shiny straws and felt, often with a wisp of plain mesh veil tied in a pouf on the back of the brim.

The outstanding trends in the Paris openings point to a slim-skirted, short daytime silhouette with "lifted" shoulders either in the construction of the shoulder itself or the cut and draping of sleeves. Necklines are higher, and most particularly show the influence of the Medici styles as launched in the play "Margot" on the French stage, this past fall.

The Margot influence is apparent in details as well as silhouette, and the result is a much more trimmed program of fashions.

And how about those beaded dresses Paris has made so exciting? Women have always loved beaded dresses and I imagine will be in high fettle because they are again permitted—nay, encouraged.

QUESTION: "What does it mean when a visiting card has the word Thursdays printed in the lower left hand corner? Recently I saw such a card—Mrs. C. D. S."

ANSWER: It is an old-fashioned custom indicating that Thursday is the at-home day. On this day, the person whose name appears on the card has "open house" and any friends who care to may drop in to visit and have a cup of tea. The usual visiting hours for at-home days are between three and five P.M.

QUESTION: "I have been criticized for saying 'Meet Miss So-and-So,' when making introductions. What should I say?—B. B."

ANSWER: You could say, "I want you to meet Mr. So-and-So." Or more simply, "M. S. Smith, this is Miss So-and-So." Other acceptable forms of introduction are, "May I introduce" and "Allow me to introduce Miss So-and-So."

QUESTION: "My skin itches in cold weather. Can you tell me what can be done to prevent this?"—Mildred.

ANSWER: Brush your hair daily, massage your scalp twice weekly and shampoo every week with liquid tar soap or melted castile soap, to which 1 ounce of tincture of green soap has been added. Give your hair three separate latherings and rinse thoroughly to remove all oil and deposits.

File your nails fairly short in neat ovals with an emery board. Soak them in warm olive oil or warm cuticle oil at night, leaving some of the oil on your fingertips and slipping on an old pair of gloves before you go to bed.

Dishes for Today

Apple Pie Still 'Tops' With the Men

By JUDITH WILSON

ANY GROCER will tell you apples are a favorite winter fruit. Apple pie with big chunks of cheese is a man's notion of a perfect dessert, although other dishes are popular, too. Try today's recipes before apples become too scarce.

Rhubarb-Apple Dumplings

Make a rich pastry, using the recipe for a double crust pie. Roll out on a floured board and cut into 4-inch squares. Peel 2 apples and cut in half-inch dice, and mix with 1 cup diced rhubarb, 3/4 cup granulated sugar and a little cinnamon. Place 2 tablespoons of the mixture in the center of each pastry square. Bring the edges together and seal securely. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes. Serve with a sweetened and slightly thickened rhubarb sauce.

Blushing Salad

Wash, pare and core 8 apples. With a French vegetable chopper cut small balls from 2 apples. Boil together 1 1/2 cups each sugar and water and 3/4 cup red cinnamon candy. Put in the whole apples. 2 at a time and cook slowly, turning frequently in the red syrup. When just tender, remove from the syrup and chill. Cook the apple balls in the red syrup until tender but firm and drain. Mash 1 package cream cheese, soften with cream and mix with 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts. Fill the cavities of the apples with the cheese, place on lettuce covered plates and garnish with the apple balls. Pass mayonnaise.

Apple Sherbet

Boil together 2 cups water and 1 cup sugar for 10 minutes. Add 2 cups sweetened apple sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and a drop of peppermint flavoring or a sprig of mint, finely chopped. Pour into the freezing pan of the refrigerator or pack in ice and freeze, stirring twice during the freezing process. Garnish with mint.

Applesauce Cake

Sift cake flour and measure 1 3/4 cups, resist 3 times with 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/4 teaspoon cloves. Cream 1/2 cup butter thoroughly, add 1 cup sugar and cream to beaten, 1 cup raisins, finely cut and flour, and 1 cup chopped nuts. Add the flour mixture alternately with 3/4 cup thick strained applesauce a little at a time. Beat until smooth and bake in a greased loaf pan, 7x5x3 inches, in a moderate oven 1 hour. Cover with apple frosting.

Apple Frosting

Cream 3 tablespoons butter, add gradually 2 cups confectioner's sugar, 1/3 cup thick apple sauce and a few drops lemon juice and grate lemon rind to flavor. Beat until fluffy and of the right consistency to spread. Spread thickly on top and over the sides of the loaf cake.

Apples on a Stick

Have rather small red apples, washed, dried and stuck on wooden skewers before you make the syrup. Use a deep saucepan so there will be plenty of room for plunging the apples into their candy coating. Boil together 1 cup white corn syrup, 2 1/2 cups brown sugar, 2 1/2 tablespoons vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 pound butter. Cook until the mixture turns hard when dropped into cold water. A few drops red coloring may be added if you wish. Dip the apples quickly and place on waxed paper or plates to harden. Nice for children's parties or dessert for supper!

McGrady, known as one of the ablest strike mediators in the country, seemed to be the chief hope. He broke off negotiations at Akron, O., where labor trouble threatens the rubber industry, to start for New York. The state of emergency proclaimed yesterday by La Guardia, who fears for the health and safety of 7,000,000 New Yorkers, remained in effect. Police, firemen and health officers provided emergency elevator service and fired furnaces in homes where there was sickness.

Bambrick and Rawlins agreed to return to city hall at 1 P. M. tomorrow—when McGrady presumably will be here to try for the third time to reach an agreement. The strike spread slowly today and both sides had their moments of triumph.

Jury Out Five Hours; Five Ballots Taken; Attorneys To Appeal

At 2:55 a. m., which the county was given for home in El Cerrito. At the same time an assignment was made out in blank as to certain diamond rings, the property of the aged woman, Mrs. Iona Booth, secured the will and the assignment the legal work being done by Attorney (Will) S. Robinson of this city.

The diamonds at the time were pledged for a loan of $300 with Mrs. Alma Gough. When the will and diamond assignment were called to Mrs. McCord's attention, it was suggested to her by Mrs. Booth that Mrs. McCord redeem the diamonds reputed to be worth $2,500, and that the money derived from them could be used to reimburse the county for the money it had paid in relief to Mrs. Jackson and also provide the woman with ready cash. A niece in Moffat, Colorado had offered to look after her and give her a home.

Mrs. McCord borrowed sufficient money to redeem the stones from the Goughs from George Lee, local broker. She then attempted to sell the stones, but found that the best offer she could get was $250. She finally did pawn them for $300. As she had paid the Goughs $368.98 for their redemption she was out the sum of $68.98. The matter was talked over by Mrs. McCord and Mrs. Booth, as the result of which a claim was made on the county for $68.98. However, the claim stated that it was for money for expenses of Mrs. Jackson's trip to Moffat, Colorado. It was this claim, which first resulted in the resignation of Mrs. McCord as head of the social service department and her subsequent indictment by the grand jury.

The night she appeared before the grand jury she took a train out of Martinez, went to Sacramento, from there to Reno and thence to Salt Lake City, where she was apprehended by Sheriff John Miller February 8th and brought back here for trial.

TWO DIFFERENT PICTURES

Two pictures of Mrs. Ruth McCord were painted to the jury yesterday afternoon—one in colors of somber grey with a background of black. This was the work of the artists for the prosecution, who drew the outlines of a scheming, designing woman who had illegally, wilfully, wantonly and feloniously mulcted the County of Contra Costa out of the sum of $68.98 through the presentation of an alleged false and fraudulent claim.

The other picture was the work of Attorneys Ralph Wight and Robert Collins who filled in the background, and left the canvas for the master hand of Attorney Tom Carlson to complete. His completed work showed Mrs. McCord as a malignant and persecuted woman, one who had rendered good and faithful service to her employer, the county; who had done no wrong, had not benefited financially through the transaction that entangled her in her present troubles; that at the worst she could be accused of poor business methods and no hesitation should be evidenced in rendering an immediate verdict of acquittal.

MOVING FLEA

It was a powerful plea that the Richmond barister made for the accused and one that moved many in the courtroom to tears. During its height the defendant for the first time lost her marvelous self-control and broke down and sobbed. Even the opposing counsel was seen to surreptitiously wipe moisture from their eyes.

BOYER OPENS ARGUMENT

Argument was opened upon convening of court yesterday morning by Deputy District Attorney Rex Boyer opening for the prosecution. The jury was thanked for its attention and consideration and then he launched into his discourse. He first called attention to the oaths taken that the jury would not let the fact that the defendant was a woman influence their nor sympathy sway them, and would disregard the position formerly held by her as having any weight in their deliberations.

"There are lots of people in this county who would like to see Mrs. McCord acquitted and there are lots of people who desire her conviction," he said. The courtroom had been crowded every day of the trial by people anxious to see if you are going to be swayed by sympathy or other considerations in the weighing of the testimony in this case.

"Divested of legal verbiage, Mrs. McCord stands charged here with presenting a false and fraudulent claim to the county in the sum of $68.98. I do not question, and I do not think you do, that the amount of the fraudulent claim is the same amount that she was loser in the deal on the Jackson diamonds. We say it was a false claim. Why do we say it? Because we know that it was not for expenses of Mrs.

Jackson to Moffat, Colorado but to cover Mrs. McCord's loss in the diamond transaction.

"You saw her on the witness stand. You heard her testimony. You could not help but notice the shifty way she answered questions and her deliberate attempts at evasion, even to the point of lying. Time and time again I tried to get her to specify what sums of money, if any she had paid out in Mrs. Jackson's behalf, but she backed and filled and I was unable to force a definite answer out of her. Contrast her attitude and demeanor with that of Mrs. Iona Booth on the stand. She frankly and without hesitation answered the questions of counsel for both sides without hesitation or evasion.

"Is it humanly possible for you or me to believe that the money Mrs. McCord claims to have given Mrs. Jackson and for which a claim was put into the county, tallied to a cent with the loss she sustained in the diamond transaction?

"The fact is that Mrs. McCord, not being able to give a receipt for the loss on the diamonds so as to reimburse herself, was forced to submit a false claim, backed up by a receipt from Mrs. Jackson, an aged woman who did not know what she was signing. The eyes of the county are—An objection by Attorney Carlson that the argument was not based on the evidence brought an admonition to the speaker from the court. A plea for conviction concluded the talk.

DISCUSSES INDICTMENT

Ralph Wight of Martinez, who was attorney for Mrs. McCord at the time of her indictment was the next speaker. "We may have wondered," he started, "at the motives and the political intrigue back of this case and the useless expense of a trial of a woman who has done no wrong and has not wrongfully or illegally taken a cent of money from the county but we have nothing to do with those things here. It is our concern only to weigh the testimony and the evidence and be guided by the law as laid down by the court."

Wight then read the count, the second of the indictment, on which Mrs. McCord was tried, and argued that no evidence had been adduced to show that the defendant had attempted to defraud the county. As to the presentation of the alleged false claim, it was his contention that it was prepared by Mrs. Booth, presented by her to J. H. Morrow, the purchasing agent, a check in payment of the same given to Mrs. Booth, and a receipt for the check given by Mrs. Booth for the check, as proven by the testimony of Mrs. Belshaw, assistant to Morrow. Wight also argued that there had been no corroborative evidence, except by an accomplice, to sustain the charges of the prosecution and that there could possibly be only one verdict under the circumstances, the complete exoneration of the defendant.

CRITICIZES GRAND JURY

"Mrs. Ruth McCord, the defendant, came to this county in 1930," began Robert Collins of defense counsel, "and I think we will all admit the years that followed were trying ones. During that five-year period Mrs. McCord was trying to do her best for people who had suffered reverses and came to know the meaning of adversity. Now they come and say she filed a false claim in the sum of $68.98 and want to deprive her of her liberty."

"Usually there is a direct conflict in the testimony adduced by the two sides to a case, but here is a situation that is unique for there is no conflict of evidence. The witnesses for the prosecution have been our witnesses. The district attorney in his opening statement to the jury said Mrs. McCord borrowed the money to redeem Mrs. Jackson's jewelry and was $68.98 out of pocket. The chief prosecuting witness was Iona Booth and she was our witness."

"There has been no evidence here to convince 12 reasonable women and men that the defendant is guilty. Intent is the essential part of any criminal act. No criminal intent on the part of Mrs. McCord to defraud the county has been shown. Mrs. McCord did not present any claim to the county, as has been proven out of the mouths of prosecution witnesses. She signed no claim."

"When anyone starts out to cheat they do not leave all the evidence open and aboveboard like in this case where all the documents relating to the transaction of the diamonds and the presentation of the claim were in the public files of the office of the welfare board. In those files were the will giving the real estate of Mrs. Jackson to the county, the assignment of the diamonds, the pawn tickets and the letter written by Mrs. Jackson to the niece of Mrs. McCord in Colorado detailing the entire transaction, advising the niece that if she had the money she could redeem the stones; otherwise they would be forfeited for the loan and that the county would be forced to pay the loss of $68.98 suffered in the transaction. Does this look like an attempt to conceal anything or that the transaction would not stand the closest scrutiny? Does this look like any intent to defraud anyone?"

"It is significant that the same grand jury that indicted Mrs. McCord

Strike Shuts Tire Plant

ABOUT 14,000 persons were thrown out of work when a strike starting as a departmental "sit-down" affair expanded to bring virtual standstill to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's vast plants in Akron, Ohio. Above are some of the picketers, who braved sub-zero temperatures to blockade the entrances, getting hot coffee from an improvised shelter.

Cord was denounced by the district attorney for presenting illegal mileage claims to the county. But that was different.

"I have often wondered why this case was ever brought as there was no justification or basis for crucifying this woman."

"Did Mrs. McCord profit one cent out of this deal. No, but she sits here in court today charged with a felony. Take this testimony as a whole, view every transaction involved in this case and every action of the accused and there cannot be found a reason for this prosecution."

CLOSING FOR DEFENSE

"Myself and associates are representing here today a woman who sleeps across the street in a little room with bars over the windows in a cell; who comes into this courtroom every day under guard and whose future is at stake," was the opening sentence of Attorney Tom Carlson's plea to the jury in behalf of the defendant.

Continuing, he said: "Before I launch into a discussion of this case I want to say to you, the members of this jury, that Mrs. McCord is very grateful to you for the attention you have accorded the case, that she is satisfied with you, one and all as jurors, and regardless of the outcome, she will feel nothing but gratitude toward you. In her behalf, myself and associates, I want to thank the judge who has so ably, fairly and impartially presided. I also want to compliment the district attorney, an able young man and his assistant, Mr. Boyer for their manifest fairness throughout the proceedings."

"But do not let anyone get you off the track in this case. It makes no difference what counsel on either side says, it is your duty to make a decision on the facts and the law as laid down to you by the court."

Carlson then read the second count of the indictment and discussed it in detail, asserting that the prosecution had not proved its case under its language and charges.

"We are not trying Mrs. Iona Booth here," he exclaimed. She is an estimable young woman and one for whom I have the highest respect, but Mrs. McCord stands accused of presenting a fraudulent claim to the county and defrauding it out of the sum of $68.98."

"If the district attorney had had the same experience as some of the rest of us here, he would have, after hearing Mrs. Belshaw and other witnesses testify, said to you that the case had fallen by its own weight and moved for a dismissal."

"We are convinced that if this case is weighed by law and evidence there can be the possibility of only one verdict, that of acquittal. You cannot go outside of the evidence. No matter what I say, no matter what the district attorney says, the judge is the boss and what he says is the law."

A review of the case followed, the different documents which had been introduced discussed, and the conclusion advanced that none of them showed fraudulent intent on the part of Mrs. McCord. In the afternoon the exhibits were again discussed by Carlson and the point re-emphasized that neither documents nor actions showed an intent to defraud the county. "Each and every document I have read," he said, "was found in the files of the social service department of the county. When you are going to commit a crime you do not leave incriminating evidence lying around. Yet all these documents were found in the files, which surely was not an attempt at concealment."

"I want you to bear one thing in mind. Everything Mrs. Booth and Mrs. McCord did was on the advice of an attorney and a reputable attorney too, Will S. Robinson of Richmond. If a crime has been committed then it was on the advice of an attorney, but none has small but not the principle, that the security of our government rests in the honesty and integrity of its public officials. It is for that reason that the offense is greater when committed by a public servant than by a private individual.

"There is no personal feeling here as far as Mrs. McCord is concerned. She departed from the county shortly after I took office. She sneaked out, and that was because of a guilty conscience. The night she left she told her attorney she would see him the next morning. She lied to him. She tells you that it was in May or June in the library in Salt Lake City that she read in an Antioch paper that she was wanted. Did she notify the

"Not a word was said by Mr. Boyer in his argument about flight and I suspect that he purposely avoided the question to give Mr. Healey a chance to discuss it in his closing speech when I have no opportunity to reply. Mrs. McCord was not charged with flight but presenting a false claim. It seems, however to have been made an issue here."

"In weighing this matter you have a right to consider a number of things that the foreman of the grand jury and other people in this community wrote to Los Angeles where she had secured a job at a salary just possible to keep body and soul alive and demanded her discharge, saying 'you have a bad one in your employ and should get rid of her; that faithful to her trust, she after her discharge worked all night getting her office affairs in shape, took a train and came here after two nights without sleep and at her own expense at the behest of a hostile grand jury."

"This woman has had a rough deal and I am here today to defend her for that reason. I do not get a cent for my services, neither does Mr. Wight nor Mr. Collins. Reputable lawyers are willing to go to the bat for anyone they think is being crucified and pay does not enter into consideration."

ABLE PRESENTATION

District Attorney Healey was at his best in the final argument. He coldly, critically and analytically dissected the testimony during the course of a brief, but effective talk, always hammering away on the one fact that Mrs. McCord was guilty as charged, that the evidence so proved and that it was the duty of the jury to convict her.

"In one breath, Mr. Carlson in a flood of eloquence assures us of Mrs. McCord's innocence and in the next asks you to free her, knowing she is guilty. His address was the most eloquent I have ever listened to and almost convinced me of the justness of his plea."

"The $68.98 Mrs. McCord fraudulently secured will not break the county. The amount involved is small but not the principle, that sheriff? She came here from Los Angeles, refused to testify before the grand jury, phoned her attorney, and after thinking the thing over decided that the best thing she could do was to get as far away as possible.

"Whether the claim was presented by Mrs. McCord or Mrs. Booth makes no difference. It was done for Mrs. McCord and with her knowledge and for her benefit. Mrs. McCord was the one who got the money and had it deposited in her personal bank account. If the transaction was in good faith and not for the purpose of defrauding the county, why did she not consult me, her legal advisor? Why did she not consult with the board of supervisors, her employers? No, she thought the diamonds were worth $2,500, that is the reason why she personally borrowed the money to redeem them. Then she figured in her own mind that she would have a tidy sum left to put in her own pocket. Every fact, every movement made by her, including her attempt to recoup her private loss through the presentation of a false claim to the county for the amount she lost on the diamond transaction, shows that she is guilty and I ask you to so decide."

JUDGE DELIVERS CHARGE

The charge of Judge Bray to the jury occupied over half an hour. In only one instance did it depart from the usual instructions given in such cases and that was an admonition to the jury not to be swayed in their deliberations and the reaching of a verdict by "outside influences."

The charge was completed at 3:17 P. M. and bailiffs sworn in to safeguard and protect the jury in its deliberations. A bailiff was also sworn to look after the two alternate jurors, who were taken to a separate room from the twelve.

PAIN
A patient who is in pain is a patient looking for a remedy, and the question uppermost in his mind is, "How can I make this pain stop hurting?" The best answer that the doctor can possibly give to that question is: "Find out what is causing the pain and remove that cause."

It is to be expected that the patient in pain is an impatient patient—he wants first of all to secure relief as soon as possible and undoubtedly, many a reasonable person will, while under the influence of pain, seek an unreasonable remedy. Even a wise man, if in pain, may be misled into using foolish remedies. Pain is a compelling symptom—it compels the sufferer to do something about it and the sooner the better. It drives him to action and constitutes an immediate emergency.

In meeting that emergency, many a person makes the mistake of being content with temporary relief. It is admitted that temporary relief is often of value in making the patient more comfortable. Temporary relief can not be called a true curative treatment because of a cause and that cause must first be taken away if any lasting improvement is to be secured.

The best plan when pain is present, is to try to find out the fundamental cause of the pain. In normal health, pain is unknown. A part must be insulted by disease, must be injured, pressed upon, irritated, inflamed or affected by reflex action before it will become painful. Whenever pain appears, there is always a reason for it.

Pain is a symptom which exhibits a varied and complex character. It is strictly private—you are the one who feels it and you are the one who must describe it. You may describe it as boring, sharp, or shooting. It may be so slight that you must center your attention upon it to feel it at all, or it may be so severe that you can think of nothing else. It is pre-eminently your own personal experience and you must bear it with what fortitude you can muster until relief is found.

We have various ways of estimating pain as to frequency, duration, severity and so on, but to date, no accurate way of measuring pain has been devised. There is a machine which is supposed to tell when you are telling a lie, but no machine has been invented which will measure the severity of a painful sensation.

Sometimes an adequate estimate of the nature of a pain may be secured by asking the patient such questions as these: "What part is the most painful?" "How long at a time does the pain last?" "Does the pain become worse when you move around?" "Is the pain worse at night?" "Did it appear suddenly?" "Does the pain bother you a great deal or do you have periods when you forget it?" "Do you worry about the pain getting worse, that is, do you worry for fear it will become more severe?" However, in addition to considering the patient's answers to these questions, the doctor in charge of the case should also make a thorough examination.

From my own experience I know that if you ask of them what symptom they wish to overcome first, that the majority of them will say that first of all they want to get rid of a pain that has been troubling them. Just to have the pain go away is always the most important thing to the patient. Nevertheless, the pain is not the most important thing; the really important thing is to get down to causes. Removal of the cause is the only way to bring the patient permanent relief.

While the cause is being removed, the patient may be greatly helped by applying heat in some form and that is a popular treatment inasmuch as it may be used at home. However, heat applications as a rule should be supplemented by the treatment necessary to overcome the cause.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Hardening of Arteries and Cramps)
Question: Mr. B. X. inquires: "I wish to get your opinion on this case. The patient is 55 and suffers cramp-like pains in various parts of the body. Her doctor says there is a contraction of the blood vessels or arteries which cuts off the blood supply and this is the cause of the pain."

Answer: A frequent cause of painful cramps, especially in the legs, in older patients, is a hardening of the arteries as this interferes with the proper circulation of blood. However, this is not the only cause which could produce this symptom, as it may be due to neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

(Citrus Fruits Helpful)
Question: Miss Bonnie G. asks: "Will you kindly state in the paper whether citrus fruits are irritating or not?"
Answer: I do not consider citrus fruits irritating, in fact I frequently recommend the citrus fruit fast for overcoming various types of irritation.

(Starchy Vegetables)
Question: Mrs. O. L. writes: "What are some of the vegetables known as starchy?"
Answer: The principal starchy vegetables are potatoes, Hubbard squash, green corn, large green peas, sweet potatoes, lima beans, etc.

THE Nash Ambassador is not a scaled-down model. These are the largest, finest sedans in the entire Nash line for 1936! They have a 125-inch wheelbase! Compare that with other leading cars in this price class in the chart at the right.

The Nash Ambassador has the famous Nash "Twin-Ignition" engine and all of the long-life engineering features usually found only in cars costing hundreds of dollars more. It gives you big, double-acting hydraulic brakes and an all-steel body with steel top!

There has been no "skipping" in upholstery or in fittings. The new Ambassador is even more luxurious, even roomier, even more beautifully designed than models formerly priced around $2,000!

Yet the prices of these big, luxurious sedans start at $835 and end at $995! This is unquestionably the year to buy your Nash Ambassador! The Nash Motors Company, Kenosha, Wisconsin.

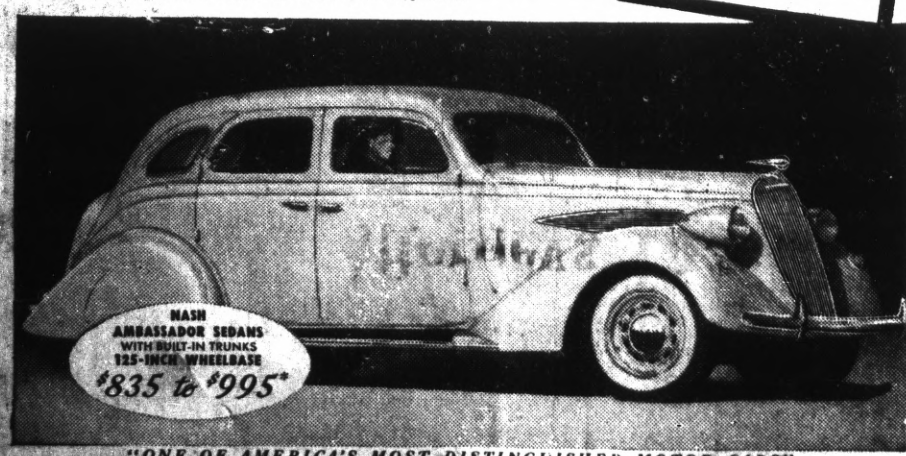

AUTOMATIC CRUISING GEAR available at slight extra cost. Reduces engine revolutions 1/2 at high speeds. Minimizes wear on moving parts. Saves up to 25% in gasoline; up to 50% in oil!
